Les 400 coups

Les 400 coups is a French Canadian Publishing house who specializes in children's illustrated albums. It can be best defined in these few words: Through the power of words and illustrations let us find pleasure, beauty and reflection.

Through whimsical or thought-provoking texts and illustrations, for both the young and the young at heart, the Éditions Les 400 coups provide a forum for those who have something to share. By publishing children's books we participate wholeheartedly in the great adventure of being Human with all of its infinite nuances.

OUR COLLECTIONS

Mes premiers coups P.2

Short narrative stories mixing fantasy, silliness and humor, with the aim of introducing to children the fun that can be found in stories. Book board series.

Mes petits moments P.6

The collection presents to young readers stories about these little moments of life, exchanges, sharing and anecdotes that light up our days and make them as fascinating as rewarding.

Grimace P.8

It's recess time! Time to read funny stories, sometimes a little provoking, just for fun. A wonderful opportunity to indulge in illustrations that sometimes say more than words ever could.

400 coups P.20

A collection of series that explode and move without constraints! For your enjoyment, a vast array of emotions, for young and young at heart. Albums from here, there and everywhere to be read or read to.

Carré blanc P.40

When does a black circle become a white square? When it nuances its point of view. With thought-provoking stories accompanied by strong illustrations, this collection hopes to sensitize children on what makes up our humanity.

Mémoire d'images P.46

This documentary series offers young readers a glimpse of our past through a story based on archival photographs and documents.

Hop là! P.48

Books that stand out by their originality.
Books that leave no one indifferent!

Le ballon d'Emilio

Author: Pierrette Dubé
Illustrator: Aurélie Grand

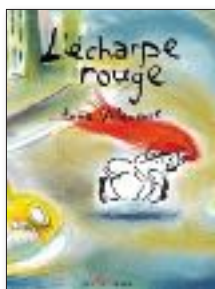

"One day, Emilio wanted to throw his ball way up in the sky. He threw it so hard that the ball went right over the fence and fell... in the neighbor's yard."

While Emilio is wondering how he'll ever get his ball back, we playfully follow the ball as it ventures through the city, takes the subway, visits the ocean floor and much more. This little ball is going to go far!

The Red Scarf

L'écharpe rouge

Author • Illustrator:
Anne Villeneuve

A grey morning, a yellow cab and a red scarf. And the circus begins...

Let yourself be carried away by the beauty of the images that relate, without words, the story of a taxi driver trying to catch up with a client who just forgot his scarf. The colorful and dynamic images take us in this crazy race through circus acts.

The Tiny Yellow Leaf

La petite feuille jaune

Author: Laurie Cohen

Illustrator: Marie-Anne Abesdris

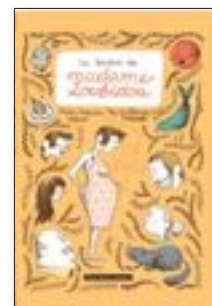

“A lovely tree, carried at the tip of its branches, beautiful leaves of green. But right in the middle, a small yellow leaf just didn't feel it was in the right place. She was shaped weird. She was different.”

A touching tale on differences while discovering the story of this marginalized little yellow leaf and its travels through the city as she is blown off by the autumn wind. A poetic and tender quest for one's identity.

Nicolas Debon

August 1914. The world goes to war. In Canada, volunteers are lining up. Didn't they say war would be over by Christmas? A brave soldier told the story of Franck, a young man whose enthusiasm gradually transforms into disillusion. The brutal living conditions of the soldiers during First World War are presented here in a style that, by the sobriety of the text and images, and the accuracy of the words and the sensitive glimpse, is a remarkable work. No one can close this book without thinking about the horrible massacre that was the war to end all wars.

It's my War Une guerre pour moi

Author: Thomas Scotto
Illustrator: Barroux

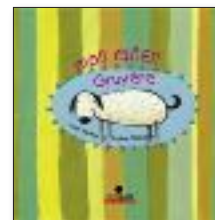

"Amal, he's my everyday brother. He was born in the raging night. No lighting, no thunder, just the scream of his voice like a machine gun fire.

Me, I came much later. It was normal that he would be there to teach me life."

Is it normal to be born in a war-torn country? Is it normal to want to play war? Is it a game?

The Little Girl with The Wooden Leg La petite fille à la jambe de bois

Author: Hélène Castelle
Illustrator: Marion Arbona

Penny is only 6 and she no longer believes in fairy tales. Yet she has read many and she knows them at the fingertips. She knows that there is one thing that does not exist in those stories: princes and princesses with wooden leg.

Here is the story of this curious little girl who was born like this: a head, two arms and a twig. A little difference that no prince found charming.

First Visit in Montreal, 1912. The Beginning of a Century

Première visite à Montréal, 1912. Le début d'un siècle

Author: André Leblanc
Archive Pictures

In 1912, Angélique visits Montreal, a strange yet familiar city: the Victoria Bridge is no longer a covered bridge, and there are not less than four main train stations. Traffic on the river, animation in the streets, and the wobbly trams carrying dwellers at full speed, the beauty of the buildings, and this mountain, as a living décor. Everything impress and scares the young girl.

Montreal is then the Canadian metropole. The most active city in the country.

But what is she doing in Montreal?

A family story and a Montreal story.

The Other Tune of The Songs

L'envers de la chanson

Author: André Leblanc
Archive Pictures

"I have learned childhood songs, said the author, on my parents' or grandparents' lap. It's only later that I saw the other side..."

To the melody of "Savez-vous planter les choux ?" or "File la laine, file les jours..." (French children songs), André Leblanc tells, through rare archival pictures, the stories of children at work of the late 19th and beginning of 20th centuries.

Jacques Cartier in Hochelaga

Jacques Cartier à Hochelaga

Author: Françoise Ligier
Archive Pictures

Jacques Cartier made 3 trips in North America. For each of them, he wrote what he called a "brief travel story", sort of journal accompanied with illustrations.

This book presents a short extract from the journal of the second trip. It's the year 1535. Jacques Cartier let his last ship, the Émerillon, on the Lake Saint Pierre. The ship is too heavy and the seabed too high. He continues on a boat, with a few gentlemen, to discover a rich city of which he has only heard of: the famous Hochelaga. A direct, living narrative, filled with details about the people, the architecture, the food, the activities and the welcome given to the French people.
